

Values and Interests Exercise

Introduction To Values and Interests

Understanding your core values and interests is crucial in shaping a fulfilling career. Values reflect what is important to you in life, while interests point to activities and subjects that engage and excite you, this exercise will help you discover the alignment between your personal values and professional aspirations, guiding you towards more satisfying career decisions.

EXERCISE 1: IDENTIFYING YOUR CORE VALUES

List your top 10 values that are most important to you in both your personal and professional life. Consider values such as integrity, security, freedom, innovation, leadership, community, balance and ambition. For each value, describe why it is important to you and how it influences your career choices.

VALUE	WHY IS IT IMPORTANT	HOW IT INFLUENCES CAREER CHOICES

EXERCICE 2: EXPLORING YOUR INTERESTS

Think about activities, subjects, and work tasks that you find most enjoyable and fulfilling. Write them down and explore why you feel drawn to these interests. Try to identify themes or common elements that might suggest suitable career paths or industries.

INTERESTS	WHY YOU ENJOY IT?

EXERCISE 3: MATCHING VALUES AND INTERESTS TO CAREER OPTIONS

Think about activities, subjects, and work tasks that you find most enjoyable and fulfilling. Write them down and explore why you feel drawn to these interests. Try to identify themes or common elements that might suggest suitable career paths or industries.

MAPPING EXAMPLE

VALUE	INTEREST	POTENTIAL CAREER PATH
LEADERSHIP	ORGANIZING TEAM PROJECTS	PROJECT MANAGEMENT

VALUE	INTEREST	POTENTIAL CAREER PATH

REFLECTION

After completing these exercises, reflect on any new insights gained on how your understanding of your values and interests may have changed. Consider how this new awareness can be used to make informing career decisions.